

Linex Loyalty

The Constellation Model

Translating the founding vision into an operating framework: a three-tier architecture where every site attracts its ideal buyer and filters out the wrong fit — built to add stars without limit, each with its own named intelligence and a clear job to do.

01 • WHAT WE HEARD

The validated model

The founder’s direction reframed the question. Rather than “one platform” or “separate sites,” the model is sharper: sites as corporate communication instruments that support sales, each one built to attract its ideal client and filter out the wrong fit. Three principles anchor the architecture:

THE THREE PRINCIPLES THAT ANCHOR THE MODEL

- 1. No package — we assemble capabilities. We introduce ourselves as Linex Loyalty and show the full ecosystem, but we sell the specific capability a prospect needs first (e.g. travel), then add others when the client needs them.
- 2. Every site has one target. Each site draws in its audience and lets the wrong-fit prospects self-select away. Segmentation by intent, not a single funnel.
- 3. We only add stars — and each can shine independently. The architecture must scale to N business lines without ever rebuilding the system — while niches that belong together sit under one star rather than fragmenting into many. The number and identity of the stars is deliberately open: a category can spawn out into its own star when the business justifies it.

This is the Constellation — but richer than our first draft. It adds a tier we hadn’t drawn (the fund), and it replaces “buy the bundle” with “enter anywhere, assemble over time.” And the intelligences that do the assembling now have names: Ixar (ee-SAR) at Linex Loyalty and Milton at Linex Rewards, with the Travel and Marketplace genies still being named. Ixar retires the generic label we had been using; the masterbrand and domain do not change.

TIER 1 • THE FUND

Linex Capital

linexcapital.com

Attracts large investors and companies that want to join the constellation. Managed with Laurent. Low maintenance.

TIER 2 • THE SPACE PORT

LINEX LOYALTY

linex-loyalty.com • home of Ixar

IXAR • THE MASTER GENIE

Attracts banks & large corporations. Inspirational and about big scale — and the home of Ixar, the master genie of Linex Loyalty — the one that orchestrates the other genies: it speaks for the whole constellation, explains the stars, and convenes and orchestrates a custom solution across them. The launch point into the constellation — not a checkout.

TIER 3 • THE STARS — EACH WITH ITS OWN GENIE

EXPANDING STAR

Tier 1 & 2 are global & static (corporate communication). Tier 3 stars are commercial engines — each the target of its own campaigns, mixing curated content with functional AI web-apps, and each with a named genie that dialogs with clients and builds solutions. The three foundational lines come first — Travel, Marketplace and Rewards, the EARN engine (points making, wallet, checkout) — followed by expanding stars (School and more). Marketplace is an umbrella, not a niche: shippable goods are its hardest business to run, but games, streaming and other redemption options sit under it too — rather than creating a different star for each niche. This is not fixed: Gaming can be born later, and any marketplace category can spawn out into its own star if that makes business sense. Under Linex Travel sit its channel sub-brands, inside the star and never stars of their own: LinexGo (B2B) and LinexTrip (B2C) — both pending trademark clearance. The stars are stitched together by the Group Bar — a slim “Part of Linex Loyalty” strip at the top of every star site that links to the others.

What Each Genie Builds

The job definitions are the clarifying device that links marketing, business lines and sales. Each genie dialogs with the client and builds solutions — it is not a direct execution tool like a booking agent. The names themselves are secondary; what matters is that each one has a clear job.

GENIE	STAR	BUILDS
Ixar ee-SAR	Linex Loyalty	Loyalty solutions. Has a website today, will have an app. Speaks for the whole constellation and orchestrates solutions across the stars.
naming in progress	Linex Travel	Custom travel solutions — a travel redemption site, a travel agency API, travel UX.
naming in progress	Linex Marketplace	Custom marketplace solutions — the “ supermarket builder ”: an ecommerce site covering shippable goods plus games, streaming and other redemption categories under one umbrella.
Milton	Linex Rewards	Custom points engines — accrual rules, wallet and checkout.

WHY THIS MATTERS

A genie is not a feature list: it is how a client experiences the line. It converses, understands the goal, and composes the solution — so marketing has a story to tell, the business line has a product to build, and sales has something concrete to sell. Ixar sits above them: it convenes the right specialist genies and makes them work as one, deployed inside the client's environment.

Where the genies live. Each genie lives inside its own star's site — Ixar at linex-loyalty.com, and each star's genie within that star — not on a domain of its own. If a technical route is ever needed, the genie is given a subdomain under its star's site, never a standalone domain. Genie URLs are otherwise left out, as they are likely to change.

Each Site Attracts One Buyer — and Filters Out the Rest

SITE	ATTRACTS (SPEAK TO)	FILTERS OUT (DESIGN OUT)
Linex Capital Tier 1 • Fund	Large investors; companies seeking to be acquired into the constellation.	Operating clients, end users, small prospects — no product or pricing talk.
Linex Loyalty Tier 2 • Space Port	Banks & large corporations evaluating loyalty at scale — the “big scale” audience. Ixar helps them assemble the right mix of stars.	Bargain hunters, single-feature shoppers, and casual visitors — routed to a star instead.
Linex Travel Tier 3 • Star	Companies needing travel as redemption; travel agencies needing a front-to-back system; resellers of AI travel services.	Investors, non-travel needs — a Group Bar link sends them up or across.
Linex Marketplace Tier 3 • Star	Programs needing curated shippable-goods redemption.	Travel-only or investor audiences.
Linex Rewards Tier 3 • Star	Banks & programs that need to create and manage points: accrual rules, wallet, and checkout — the EARN engine.	Redemption-only shoppers — routed to Travel or Marketplace.

Orchestration & the Star Launch Kit

Two mechanisms keep a growing constellation coherent instead of scattered: Ixar's orchestration (the genie convenes the specialists, then makes them work as one), and a non-negotiable kit every new star must adopt.

Ixar greets the prospect & frames the full constellation

Assembles a custom solution across the right stars for their need

The star's genie builds and sells its capability — its own campaigns, content & AI web-app

Group Bar cross-sells the rest of the constellation over time

The Star Launch Kit — what every new star inherits:

LOCKED • CENTRAL
Brand system
Linex + descriptor naming, shared typography, one accent color per star, and the Group Bar ("Part of Linex Loyalty"). Built once, inherited by every star — including any sub-brand inside a star.

FREE • PER STAR
Depth & budget
Each star's manager sets its own budget and quality level — "best investment possible," not forced excellence. A star can be a rich site or a lean AI web-app.

LOCKED • CENTRAL
Navigation & lead pattern
Identical IA skeleton and a shared lead/CRM pattern, so a client known to one star is known to all — enabling cross-sell and one consolidated relationship.

FREE • PER STAR
Content & campaigns
Vertical messaging, campaigns, SEO and the functional product experience are owned by the star — it speaks its niche's exact language.

The one rule that protects the constellation: budgets and depth are free per star, but the brand system and lead pattern are locked. Without that, in 12 months the stars drift into looking like unrelated companies.

Governance

THE CENTER OWNS (LOCKED)	EACH STAR OWNS (FREE)
Brand system & naming convention — including genie names and sub-brands	Site budget & quality level
Group Bar & cross-constellation navigation	Vertical content, campaigns & SEO
Shared lead / CRM pattern	Product depth (curated site vs. AI web-app)
Tier 1 & 2 global sites (low maintenance)	Go-to-market for its capability

Execution Roadmap

Two redesign tracks run in parallel and reinforce each other: each star stands on its own, while lxar presents them as one constellation, assembles cross-star solutions, and multiplies cross-sell.

TRACK 1 • NOW, IN PARALLEL

LINUX LOYALTY — home of lxar

Redesign linux-loyalty.com as the home of lxar: the genie speaks for the whole constellation, frames the “big scale” story, and convenes and orchestrates custom solutions across stars. It enters the redesign plan now — the stars shine on their own, but lxar makes them shine together.

TRACK 2 • PRIORITY 2

Linux Marketplace

Launch alongside Linux Capital’s next acquisition, using the Star Launch Kit from day one — joining the constellation coherent, not retrofitted.

TRACK 2 • PRIORITY 1

Linux Travel

Bring the existing site onto the locked brand system + Group Bar. Define its quality bar and budget with its manager, bring LinuxGo and LinuxTrip onto the system, and complete the naming of its genie. It becomes the reference star every future one copies.

THEN

The rest of the constellation

Extend with Rewards (Milton), School... — each via the same kit, shining independently, never breaking the system.

◆ RECOMMENDED NEXT STEP

Green-light the Star Launch Kit, and start two specs in parallel: lxar at the Space Port (linux-loyalty.com) and the reference star (linextravel.com). The lxar spec defines how it convenes and orchestrates cross-star solutions, and the “big scale” narrative; the Travel spec defines the template every future star inherits — page inventory, content model, Group Bar, shared lead pattern, quality/budget, and the naming of its genie.

Confidential. Working document translating the founding vision into an operating model. Tier 1–2 are global corporate-communication sites; Tier 3 stars are per-line commercial engines. “We assemble capabilities, custom for each client” — no fixed package. Genie names: lxar and Milton are set; the Travel and Marketplace genies are still being named. Inside Linux Travel, LinuxGo (B2B) and LinuxTrip (B2C) are the channel sub-brands, both pending trademark clearance. The number and identity of the stars is deliberately open — categories can spawn out into their own star as the business evolves. Genie URLs are deliberately left out: they are likely to change.
